We claim:

1. A system for providing images to a user comprising:

In response to a user request to provide one or more images, determine available user color characterization data; and cause one or more images having color characteristics appropriate to the user color characterization data so determined to be sent to user.

2. The technique of claim 1 wherein if user color characterization data is available user sees a first icon.

3. The technique of claim 1 wherein if user color characterization data is not available user sees a second icon.

4. The technique of claim 1 wherein color correction of the one or more images is on-the-fly .

5. The technique of claim 1 wherein color correction of images is by selection of a group of one or more images from one or more groups of pre-transformed images.

6. The technique of claim 4 or claim 5 wherein color correction of the one or more images is done to the characterization details of the user.

7. The technique of claim 4 or claim 5 wherein color correction of the one or more images is done to match one of a predetermined set of color characterization parameters.